"The American smart woman ages early, far earlier than the English woman," any Christian Miller, F. C. I., the famous English health expert. She sades that our cilmate "so exhilarates that you over-exert yourselves and grow old before you know it. That same exhilarating air dries the skin. The skin that lacks moisture grows pale and withered looking and soon forms wrinkles.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and juster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowaday, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tail that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking, one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your just pecomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Copy of Much-Sought Treaty Is Printed in Congressional Record After Long and Heated Debate in Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 10.- Each mem congress today had a copy of the eace treaty with Germany. The volumlous and much debated document was ontained in the Congressional Record, printed by order of the senate late yeserday after an epoch-making fight and ust after a message from President Wilson had been read saying he could not make the tracty text public without oreaking faith with other members of breaking faith with other members of the peace council.

The copy of the treaty, brought to this country by a newspaper mea, went into the record as a result of vigorous efforts of Senator Borah, of Idaho, and other Republican leaders who blocked every move of the Democrats to prevent publication. Charges of broken faith, efforts to have the matter considered in secret session and points of order were swept aside and the document was ordered printed by a vote of 47 to 24. It was not, however, until Senator Borah began reading the 160,000-word text of the treaty, which would have required many hours to complete, that opponents of the publication plan capitulated.

Decision to publish the treaty was only one of the numerous developments recently in the fight over the treaty in which was interwoven the league of nations plan, but it was expected by leaders to clear the way for the inquiry into the manner in which copies of the treaty reached unauthorized persons in New York which the foreign relations committee expects to begin tomorrow or Thursday.

Spring First Surprise.

Spring First Surprise.

Spring First Surprise.

The first of yesterday's surprises came when the foreign relations committee, whose meetings in years past have been surroupded by the closest secrecy, threw open its doors to the public. It developed then that instead of pursuing the usual method of appointing a subcommittee to make the inquiry, the full body proposed to participate.

Senator Borah was called upon first to amplify his statement in the senate about treaty copies in New York. He said that early in March he became convinced the International Bankers of New York were particularly interested in creation of the league of nations and that he quietly began an investigation. The idaho senator added he had obtained this information, together with the knowledge that a copy of the treaty was in New York, from sources which he could not reveal.

Senator Lodge next made a statement saying he, too, had derived his information about treaty copies from sources he could not reveal.

When the committee adjourned the date of next meeting was left to Chairman Lodge, who said last night there would be no session today and possibly not until Thursday.

The committee adjourned only a few minutes before the senate assembled at noon and President Wilson's cablegram approving of a rigid probe, brought in by Senator Hitchcock, at once brought up the subject in the senate chamber. Ne sooner had the message been read into the record than Senator Borah was on his feet.

"I now have in my possession a copy of the treaty," said he. "I am per-sent that it be printed in the Record."

The president's supporters promptly refused unanimous consent, and Mr. Borah then made his motion to print it. That quickly was put to a vote and the document was ordered printed, 47 to 24.
After roll call many senators were on their feet asking an opportunity to explain their vote.

Hitchcock Flays Action.

Hitchcock Flays Action.

Senator Hitchcock denounced the procedure as beneath the dignity of the senate and as a step "co-operative with the German government." Senator Swanson, of Virginia, another Democratic member of the foreign relations committee, declared it showed "a most remarkable disrespect of the president."

Senator Johnson replied that the only infamy in the matter was in "endeavoring to keep secret from all the people what Wall street has."

So heated did the exchanges become a that Vice-President Marshall called a that vice-President Marshall called a that while he read the rules governing language to be used in debate. After more than an hour, Senator Beckman, Democrat, of Kentucky, said he had voted for the Borah motion under a misapprehension and moved to reconsider the action by which the treaty was ordered printed. A reconsideration vote was prevented, however, by the arrival of 2 o'clock, when the wire repeal bill came automatically before the senate. The president's supporters utilized the opportunity to endeavor to have a vote pastponed until today. Senator Hitchcock, who had the floor, yielded it to Senator Williams, who spoke for an hour and a half. He declared Senators Lodge and Borah were "nagging" the president by means of "a partisan majority, sided by a few men on this side who ave seeking re-election." Senator Borah, continued Mr. Williams, had become "a Prussian junker" at heart, believing in sovereignty unlimited.

"The senator from Idaho," he shouted, "wants ne limitation put on our national government. He wants the Borah Gains Floor.

Shortly before 4 o'clock Senator Williams concluded, and Senator Borah, obtaining the floor, remarked that the authenticity of his treaty copy had been questioned, and that he would prove it by reading the document. Thereupon he began leisurely with the big volume, reading of which probably would have taken is hours.

Immediately parliamentary objections came from the Democratic side. The president's supporters objected that Mr. Borah was reading a confidential document against the senate's rules, that he was bryaking both precedent and rules by presenting a treaty at an open session, and that he was exceeding his right by speaking too often on the same subject during the same debate.

But all efforts to cut off the reading falled, and for an hour Mr. Borah read through the cumbersome preamble and into the first section of the treaty. At last, however, conferences among the leaders brought a compromise by which unanimous consent was given to interrupt the reading for a vote on the reconsideration motion. It promptly was rejected, 42 to 24, opening the way to rush the treaty off to the government printing office.

The Mississippi delegation was likewise petitioned to do what it can to bring about legislation to render effective the spirit of the eighteenth amendment to the United States constitution. The big mass meeting also went on record as favoring the movement for world-wide prohibition, making a cash offering to help along the work of the W. C. T. U.

To balance the apparent concessions Italy is to receive a mandate for all of Albania, territory of some $,000 or $,000 square miles, inhabited by 700,000 or $00,000 people, who are themselves divided by tribes, by religion, by tradition, but united in common hatred of all invaders. This country is without railroads, without roads, the wildest part of Europe, which has never been conquered or submitted to orderly government since the days of the Romans.

Italy Enters Balkans.

By the bestowal of a mandatory for this region upon Italy, Italy enters the Balkans. She finds herself faced with the Jugo-Slavs on the north, henceforth forever her enemies because of the Dalmation and Fiume questions, while to the southward she is already embroiled with the Greeks, who claim that part of Abbania known as Northern Epirus, which is Greek in history and was assigned to Greece once during the present war and taken from the Greeks through Italian influence first after the Balkan war and second during the last war.

through Italian influence first after the Haikan war and second during the last war.

By this alleged settlement Italy is now to enter into the midst of the Balkan turmoil as an enemy of Slav and Greek. Both these people will regard her precisely as the Italians regard her precisely as the Italians regard Austria as long as the Hapsburg monarchy held Trentino and Trieste, and Paris has already been informed that Jugo-Slavia and Greece have made a secret alliance which can have no other purpose than common action against a common enemy.

But the difficulties do not end here. Rumania and Jugo-Slavia are also disputing certain territories in Banat. As a natural consequence Rumania is making common cause with Italy against the Slavs, and thus there is being revived in the interests of great power the old Balkan condition of intrigue and hatred. It will be Italy's policy necessarily as long as she holds the territories which the Slavs rightfully claim to keep Jugo-Slavia weak, both by continued efforts to propagate differences between the Slavia regardings alike with Rumanians and Bulgarians. Moreover, when Russia recovers her strength, if she does, nothing is more certain than that she will once more resume her historic championship of the southern Slavs, and we shall have Europe once more dragged into Balkan affairs and Balkan states set against each other, and the circumstances out of which the recent world war grew repeated.

This, after all, is the type of the kind of thing the Parls conference has done. The Saar valley, Dansig, Tescher and Fiume are all arrangements of the same sort, made to avoid immediate crisis but in the very nature of things post-ponling, not abolishing conflict.

Evils Are Many.

Evils Are Many.

Like all other questions which have come before the Paris conference, the Flume problem carried in its train an infinite number of evil consequences. Mr. Witson's declaration that the Italians should not have Flume was a just declaration, but to maintain his position about Flume he has been compelled to consent to one compromise, after another, which, in the aggregate, have created a far worse situation than would have resulted had Flume gone to Italy outright. Wherever one of the 14 points has been involved, in the discussion to maintain even a semblance of fidelity to that principle. Mr. Wilson has been forced to accede to the violation of that same principle elsewhere.

This Italian question is the type of all the intricate disputes of the Paris conference. The fashion in which it has been regulated is the final illustration of the working of this conference. In order to have an outlet on the sea for the Jugo-Slavs, Mr. Wilson has been obliged to consent to Italian amnezation of other Jugo-Slavs towns and sterritories, to the Italian occupation of Albania, and to the Italian occupation of Albania, and to the Italian occupation of Asia Minor.

The result is clear. Every compromise, from Shantung to the Saar, has laid the foundation for future European conflicts and has fanned the fires of racial animosities until they are burning at white heat once more. Nor is it without sinister suggestion that the fires are burning at white heat once more. Nor is it without sinister suggestion that the fires are burning most flercely precisely where the explosion five years ago set the whole world in flames. A total of 69 girls and 28 babies were cared for at the Bethany Training home, 901 Chelsea avenue, during the fiscal year which ended on June 1, according to the annual report of the institution made public Tuesday.

A total of $12,602.17 was expended during the yar, the report shows. This sum includes nearly $5,000, which was spent as first payment on the home. The balance was spent in caring for the inmates.

Thirty-one girls were inmates of the home on June 1,1919, when the report was made. Seventeen babies also were there. This number, when compared to those in the home on June 1, 1918—12 girls and seven babies—shows the enlarged scope of the work done by the Rev. A. J.
